A total of 28 strains of Listeria monocytogenes were tested for their ability to grow in a medium with glucose or glucose-cystine, for their sugar transport and catabolism, and for the uptake of amino acids and purine nucleotides from the culture medium. L. monocytogenes strains possessed the same biochemical properties. Differences were found in the catabolism of glucose and in the transport system for monosaccharides and nucleotides.import React from "react"; import ReactNative, { Dimensions 50b96ab0b6
